The effects of alprazolam (ALP), triazolam (TRI), and placebo (PL) in the doses of 3 mg, 1 mg, and none were examined in 24 middle-aged alcoholics. The obtained results indicated that chronic alcohol abuse intensified disorders of appearance, motor activity, emotions, and social behavior, and diminished neuropsychological functions. The administration of the three abovementioned substances before alcohol provoked different reactions depending on the individual characteristics. In all the cases, ALP
